

The Customs House Gallery in South Shields was certainly instrumental in pulling a wide audience into this exhibition, part of their popular programme of Art Theatre & Cinema for the South Tyneside community.

The gallery counted 20,000 visitors to the exhibition over the Christmas & New Year period.

Some excerpts from the visitors book:-

"Absolutely worth risking a parking fine for"

"It made me too scared to walk through into the cinema"

"Watch it, shake it, it was lol! " terrorist George W. Bush" "More like the weapons of mass destruction from the

"It actually made me laugh, which is quite a feat!"

Certain sculptures from Uncertain Instruments will be at the STEAM PUNK exhibition at the Discovery Museum, Newcastle-upon-Tyne in July.

UNCERTAIN INSTRUMENTS will be available for hire & tour again in September .
